

Dr. Marilyn Heng Joins the Department of Orthopaedics

Marilyn Heng, M.D. M.P.H., FRCSC, has joined the University of Miami Health System and Miller School of Medicine as a professor of clinical orthopaedics with clinical specialties in orthopaedic trauma, amputation, limb reconstruction, and more.

Marilyn Heng, M.D. M.P.H.,
FRCSC

Name: Marilyn Heng, M.D. M.P.H. FRCSC

Title: Professor of Clinical-Orthopaedics

Clinical Specialties: Orthopaedic Trauma, Amputation, Complex Limb Reconstruction, Limb Lengthening and Deformity, Metastatic Bone Disease and Pathological Fractures

Research Interests: Patient-reported Outcomes, Fracture Outcome Measurement, Novel Amputation and Peripheral Nerve Techniques

Education:

- Medical School – University of Toronto (graduated 2007)
- Orthopaedic Residency – University of Toronto (completed 2012)
- Clinical Fellowship in Orthopaedic Trauma – Massachusetts General Hospital and Brigham & Women's Hospital (completed) 2013)

- Clinical Fellowship in Orthopaedic Oncology – University of Toronto (completed 2014)
- Masters of Public Health – Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health (graduated 2016)

Certifications:

- Board certification in Orthopaedic Surgery (Canada) – Royal College of
- Board certification in Orthopaedic Surgery (US) – American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery

Prior position: Orthopaedic Trauma Surgeon Massachusetts General Hospital, Assistant Professor of Orthopaedic Surgery Harvard Medical School (2014–2022)

Language Spoken: English

Practice Locations:

- University of Miami clinic
- Jackson Memorial
- South Ryder Trauma Center

Appointments: (305) 243–3000

Content Type article